Regarding Claim 42, McCoy, Esch and Boylan together teach receiving local spot from the central server and communicate with the central server but is not explicit about reporting missing local spot withing a time window. The following references US 5,319,648, US 5,930,233, 6,483,855, 6,629,285 teach reporting to the central server about missing packets or frame within a certain time window; Therefore it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify the combined method of McCoy, Esch and Boylan to include missing local spot withing a time window, as taught by those mentioned references above with the benefits of standard acknowleging protocal of transmission to reduce transmission errors.
